NEWSLETTER No.100 JULY TO SEPT 2020

WILDLIFE ON THE MEADOW—Summer Sights

From Brian Fellows' wildlife blog

Brook Meadow work sessions and Covid 19

We restarted the regular work sessions on Thursday and Sunday mornings at the later time of 10.00. The work sessions will continue with social distancing measures being observed.

River Water

The Ems is completely dry as it enters the north east corner of the meadow. Flow in Lumley Stream is also very low.

A local group called Friends of the Ems (FOTE) has been set up demanding action to limit the damage to the river and protect it for the future. FOTE are raising these concerns with Portsmouth Water which abstracts water from the Ems valley and with the Environment Agency, which controls abstraction licences. If you would like to register your concern please contact John Millard at

Or speak to any member of the Brook Meadow committee.

20th July Small Skipper - not to be confused with the Essex Skipper which has black antennae tips.

22nd July Strawberry Clover in the eastern edge of the Lumley area. This plant needs to be looked after!

22nd July Marsh Woundwort—growing well but only in one place at the north end of the bramble path.

29th July Two long horned beetles with black and yellow wing markings (Strangalia maculata) feeding on the Wild Angelica.

5th August Hornet Mimic hoverfly ▲

7th August Holly Blue butterfly ▲

17th August Dead Head hoverfly ▼

17th August Speckled Wood butterfly ▼

Annual cut in August

The annual contractor grass cutting was undertaken efficiently by Martin Cull. It is very important to regularly cut the meadow and collect the arisings. This creates the nutrient poor soil which favours the growth of wild flowers. Each year a different area is cut in a rotational pattern. This is too large a task for our volunteer work force. Ensuring that it is done to our conservation specification forms a large part of the annual maintenance cost on the meadow.

Annual General Meeting Postponed

Due to current coronavirus restrictions, we have reluctantly decided to postpone our 2020 Annual General Meeting until at least March 2021. To request a copy of 2020 Chairman's report and accounts, contact colin.bmcg@btinternet.com after 1 November 2020.
